2. During the regime of Foreign Minister Rajk [redacted] was under suspicion and was called to the "State Security Center" for "control of foreigners". This building was located in Republikas Street behind the Technological Institute. UNCODED was taken to a room in the cellar furnished with a table and two chairs. The interrogation was conducted by a Jewish detective and [redacted] questioned about the circumstances of my entry into Hungary. [redacted] asked what directions [redacted] from the Yugoslav Secret Police. [redacted] not yet 19 when [redacted] crossed the border and surely the Yugoslav Secret Police would not want a child for a spy. [redacted] then beaten and threatened with a gun by two secret policemen whom the Jew brought into the room. I was left right there for three days but was then transferred to the Andrassy Street Secret Police Headquarters. [redacted] interrogated there for three months and every night [redacted] beaten and tortured. [redacted] nearly had a nervous breakdown but before this happened [redacted] called before a Captain who apologized for my treatment and offered [redacted] a cigarette. [redacted] a nervous state [redacted] knocked the cigarette from his hand and cursed the Communist system and [redacted] would be their enemy and hate them [redacted] sent home badly broken in body and soul. After recovering [redacted] wrote slogans on walls and damaged motors produced for delivery to the USSR. Later these motors were guarded by secret police [redacted] still succeeded in damaging them.
